

International Law Section / Inter-American Legal Affairs Committee Presents a Luncheon Program

Rule of Law in Latin America: a presentation by the Due Process of Law Foundation

Latin America has made tremendous progress in the last decades in the field of democratic institutions. However, international reports still reflect a weak rule of law that affects local people and foreign investors. Reforms have been made and some countries rank better than others, but strong criticism remains. Based in Washington, DC, the Due Process of Law which focuses primarily on rule of law issues in Latin America has a well gained reputation for conducting diagnostics and providing recommendations. Our panel will deal with issues of rule of law in Latin America, including corruption in the judiciary.

Speakers:

Eduardo Bertoni, Executive Director of the Due Process of Law Foundation (DPLF)

Katya Salazar, Programs Director at the Due Process of Law Foundation (DPLF)
